Nº2/APRIL 08

Trofeo PIRELLI*DISAPPOINTING WEEKEND
AT SILVERSTONE

It was with high hopes we arrived in Silverstone, but already during the free practice we ran into difficulties. The team had been testing at the track two weeks before, so we thought that we had a clear picture of the setup to go quick around the circuit. Unfortunately for so many reasons, the weather was as bad as it gets in the UK and with rain and cold temperatures we struggled immediately.

Despite the results, Tonys autograph still was in demand by English fans

My qualifying sessions were not good and I had to start race one in 14th position and race two in 15th. If the qualifying was disappointing, the same goes for the two races. Even with hard work I did not manage better than 15th in race one and 13th in race two. The only positive factor was that we got a lot of useful data from the car which we will analyze next week and learn from.

Despite the poor outcome of the weekend, the spirit in the team is high and now we will forget Silverstone and fully concentrate on the test days at

Paul Ricard two weeks from now. The next Ferrari Challenge race weekend will be decided at that circuit in the south of France, and we will spare no energy to prepare the cars in the best possible way to assure that we get the results that we know is possible.

Come and see me in my hometown

This Saturday You are all invited to come and see me in Karlskoga.

The last weekend in April every year the City merchants in my hometown arrange a big gathering on the town square where many enthusiast show their cars ahead of the summer. Over 100 vehicles will on display this year.

Together with touring car star Thed Björk and motorcycle ace "Crazy Mike" Nilsson I will be on hand to talk to the big crowd that every year attends the event. For me it is a little bit special because I will be reunited with the car that I won the Ferrari/Porsche Championship with 1999, a Ferrari 355 Challenge that is very special to me. The car will be on display Saturday between 10:00 and 15:00.
